MISSIONARY MEETINGS.

Three Interesting Sessions Were Held Yesterday.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

Two Foreign Missionaries Were On the Program.

Yesterday was missionary rally day at the Christian church.

The first session was held in the morning, beginning at 10 o'clock, conducted by Prof. A. McLean, of Cincinnati. He presided at all the sessions. After prayer and singing Prof. McLean gave a short talk on the duty of all Christians in relation to the spread of the Gospel in foreign lands and brought out the great need of Christian people here at home giving of their means to those who have gone to those lands where the light of the Gospel is being, comparatively, so slowly given to those who are in heathen darkness.

Rev. E. J. Osgood, who has spent eight years in China as a missionary, then gave a short talk on the Chinaman's idea of man and woman and their manner of expressing by characters their ideas of distance, and many other things.

Rev. Mr. Brazwell, of Earlinton, took the stand before the close of the morning session and spoke at some length on what Christians ought to know and do in sending the Gospel to heathen lands.

The large audience room of the church was about two-thirds full at the first service, the northern and western walls were covered by a large number of maps and pictures and the indications were promising for a grand rally for the cause of foreign missions.

The local church, under the pastorate of Dr. H. D. Smith, now stands in the front rank of all the churches of its denomination for interest and zeal in mission work, as well as its liberality. Probably no church of the Christian denomination in this section has responded more generously than Dr. Smith's to the call for foreign missions. It was expected that the meetings of yesterday would go far toward arousing the people to more activity and support of the missionary cause.

Rev. David Reach, a missionary to India, was talking to the children about child life in India when the noon hour arrived and was to renew it at 2 o'clock.

FORTY ADDITIONS

Baptist Revival Will Continue all Next Week.

The revival at the Baptist church continues with unabated interest. Since last report there have been 14 other additions to the church, making 40 in all. Of these 24 are to be baptized.

There will be but one service today, at 8 p. m. It will be for children especially, but grown people are invited to go and occupy back seats. Tomorrow the usual Sunday services will be held at 11 and 7 o'clock. The men's meeting announced for 3 o'clock in the afternoon has been postponed for one week on account of the conflict of date with the Elks Memorial Service. Dr. Jenkins explained that he did not know of the conflict when the meeting was announced.

Where's the Point?

The body of the petrinid woman was found at Paducah. It was at first supposed she was a Hopkinsville girl.—Bowling Green News.

Mrs. L. M. Blakemore has returned from a visit of three weeks to New Orleans and Gulfport, Miss.

President Spencer, of Southern Railroad, Was Killed Thursday.

PRIVATE CAR SMASHED.

Collision In Which Six Other Lives Were Lost In Virginia.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 29.—President Samuel Spencer, of the Southern Railway System, who was en route to the South, was killed this morning in a rear-end collision at Lawyers, ten miles south of Lynchburg. The private car in which he was riding was struck and split open by the colliding locomotive, and immediately caught fire and the body of Mr. Spencer was burned almost beyond recognition. In the car with him were Philip Schuyler, of New York; Mr. Spencer's private secretary, Merrill, and his private dispatcher, D. W. Davis, of Alexandria, Va. Operator Davis was crushed and died in fifteen minutes. Mr. Schuyler was instantly killed, but his body was not badly burned before it was rescued by passengers. Engineer C. Perry, who was on the rear train, was killed. Private Secretary Merrill was wounded, but the nature of his injuries has not been learned. He will be brought to this city about noon. Twelve or thirteen passengers, most of them negroes, were wounded, only one of whom is thought to be fatally hurt.

Frank T. Redwood, of Baltimore, and Charles D. Fisher, of Gill & Fisher, Baltimore, who were in Mr. Spencer's car, were killed.

He has just returned from a six years' trip abroad and heard his bride will make their home in Denver. Mr. Foster's mother will leave in a few days and after spending some time in St. Louis with her other son, Henry Foster, she will go to Denver to spend the remainder of the winter and probably longer with her younger son.

Terry Coal and Coke Co., Railroad Mines.

The above cut represents our new R. R. Mines situated one mile North of Empire Mines at the foot of the hill, near the Hopkinsville & Madisonville big road, and within one half mile of the L. & N. R. R., in Christian county, Kentucky, with a slope entry made and opened into the coal, where it ranges from 4 to 5 feet in thickness, has a perfect roof of gray slate over it for 25 feet, and the coal easily and cheaply mined, and hauled out of the mines.

This is the finest and most valuable vein of coal ever discovered in Western Kentucky, and coal experts and large consumers from Nashville, Louisville, Memphis, St. Louis and Chicago, have already been on the grounds, inspected and tested the coal, and have made offers at high prices for the entire out-put of the mine for all the coal we can produce. We are driving the main entry day and night, and will soon be ready to load several cars of coal per day.

The survey for our R. R. spur track has been made, and the cost of same estimated. Contractors are ready to build road on short notice.

A small block of our Treasury Stock at 50 cents per share remains unsold, and has been held back until now, to be offered to our present stockholders who wish to own more stock, together with others of this county who may now want to come in with us and round up the subscription, and in this way hold this stock inside of the county for consumers of coal. Our general salesman, Mr. P. P. Huffman, will see all the stockholders he can find, together with any other citizen that may want an interest with us, and give you the opportunity of taking more stock if you want it. If you fail to see him, or he fails to find you, don't wait, but come to our office and leave your order for the stock, or if you prefer it, enclose it to us by mail.

This offer remains open until the 15th of December, 1906. After that date we will close out the remainder if any left, to those who are standing ready now to take all of it in one block, if they could get it.

This is positively the last offer we will ever make to consumers of coal to get into this company on a $1.00 basis. After this block of stock is taken, the price will advance to $1.00 per share.

Yours Very Respectfully,

Grinding.
They whistle down the tube at me:
“Come, get a hurry on ye! See?”
They say they're shy about a part Of “Uncle By.” Well, that ain't hard!
I take my place behind the keys
And just write anything I please.
Sometimes I write the lines quite long.
Sometimes I sing a snatch or song
With great wide places in between,
With words like “red” and “go” and “shoot.”

They fill a column pretty quick—
You've seen the stuff—it's rather slick!
This writing game is fun for me
And just as easy as can be.
The first thing is an easy chair,
A cushion in it if you care.
A pile of paper and a pipe—
(I like an old one that is ripe).
You put your paper in the “mill”
And start the grinding when you will.
Below the presses leave and growl—
(Just hear that copy butcher howl!)
The office boy, a grumpy lad,
Comes tearing in. Of course he's mad:
“Say, hurry up, you guy,” says he,
“You stuff is late!” I say, hully gee,
You'd better get a move on you.
The air upstairs is fairly blue!
He grabs your copy off the box.
And tears away with impish look.
You haven't time to smooth your rhyme—
You've got to beat that duffer “Time.”
It doesn't matter, after all—
The rapid fire stuff has the call!
Just so you get there on the dot,
It makes no difference what the pot:
The world is out some these days
And lightning writing is what pays.
Nobody tries to tell you out things:
Nobody sleeps or rests or stings:
The man who wins to-day must scout
And do it lively, too, to boot!
That's why they whistle this at me
And cry, “You hurry up there!” See?
And so I hurry up by jing.
And write about most anything!
It really doesn't cut much ice
If what you write is not so nice.
You'll be too busy anyhow.
To care what I shall say, or how.
So take a bunch of money and
And read the headline while it's hot.
Some day if you have lots of time
Just send me word. I'll write a rhyme
All filled with deep and thrilling words.
Of mountains and skies and birds,
But while we all rush on like mad,
I guess that this stuff ain't so bad!

Two hours later he hit the trail for Goobers' ranch. As he leaped along in his old-time form the prairie horse saw cackling from his path, while the coyotes ducked to safety in their earthy dens. But Pegasus, unmindful of the robes of nature, was coaxing his stomach to be mesmerized until he could appease his pangs at Goobers' table.

When that worthy had fed him, a bargain was struck and next morning, as the bell-wether of Goobers' sheep ambled away over the prairie's breast, he was followed not only by the stock, but by Pegasus' Llewellyn Dillon as well.

For a week Pegasus maintained his vigil upon the prairie, alone with the sheep, the coyotes and the honey bees.
Then there came a night when the bell-wether ambled home in the van of his flock without the great footracer.

Rancher Goobers, peering long toward the setting sun for sight of the missing herder, corralled the bleaters and sat down upon the threshold of his shack to meditate.

He was deep in reverie when a worn and bedraggled pedestrian, mud-stained and weary, loomed into view.
It was Pegasus, but his head was labored and he threw himself upon the grass with that entire shambles which denotes complete exhaustion.

“I had—had—the (what?) the hardest race of my life!” he panted, stretching out on the grass like a milk-skin on a drying board. “I run—run—em in, though! I run—em in!”

“Run what in?” demanded Goobers, spitting a flood of tobacco juice at a cramble-bug in the grass. “Run what in?”

“The—lamb!”

“They ain't no lambs in my flock!”
said Goobers, doggedly. “What's the matter of you anyhow, Peg?”

As Pegasus led him to the corral door there was a sneer on the westerner's face.

“There are yer d-d-d lambs!”
exploded the sprinter pointing a waver-ing finger as he leaned against the corral for support. “There's six of the fastest, running lambs in Arisona!”

Goobers took one look!
“Jack rabbits, by Halifax!” he shouted. “Jack rabbits!”

And it was indeed true!

AN HONEST GRAFTER

A Glimpse Into the Future of Municipal Ownership.

A Thumb Nail Sketch of a "Practical Politician" - The Profits of an All Around "Servant of the People, Who Seen His Opportunities and Took 'Em."

"Honest graft" will reach its highest level when, as predicted by the enthusiasts, the principles of municipal ownership are accepted by New York and the city controls the trolley lines, the electric light and gas works and all the ferries as well as the water-works and the police, the fire and the street departments.

Then such patriots as George Washington Plunkitt, for many years organization leader of the Fifteenth district in New York, will reap rewards of greater magnitude than they have ever been able to gather under the present order of things.

Perhaps you have never heard about Mr. Plunkitt's "honest graft" schemes. He told about them himself in a book published last year which was introduced by a paragraph indorsing him as a "veteran leader of the organization," signed by its greatest chief.

"But," he added, "there's an honest graft, and I'm an example of how it works. I seen my opportunities and I took 'em."

Mr. Plunkitt's explanation of how he did these things will illuminate the possibilities of future municipal ownership days, if they ever come.

After elucidating the ways he was "tipped off" at various times by members of his party—the party in power—when new bridges, new parks, new streets were to be opened, so that he might invest in real estate likely to rise in price from the improvements contemplated, he adds: "I haven't confined myself to land. Anything that says is in my line." Then he gives a specific instance:

"Learning that the city was about to repave a certain street and so would have several hundred thousand dollars paying blocks to sell, he was 'on hand to buy,' and he 'knew just what they were worth.' But a newspaper 'tried to do him' and got some outside men from Brooklyn and New Jersey to bid against him. Mr. Plunkitt's own words tell the story best:

"Was I done? Not much. I went to each of the men and said, 'How many of those 250,000 stones do you want?' One said 20,000, and another wanted 15,000. I said, 'All right; let me bid for the lot, and I'll give each of you all you want for nothing!'

"They agreed, of course. Then the auctioneer yelled, 'How much am I bid for these fine pavin' stones?'

"Two dollars and fifty cents," says I.

"Two dollars and fifty cents!" screamed the auctioneer. 'Oh, that's a joke. Give me a real bid!'

"He found the bid was real enough. My rivals stood still. I got the lot for $250 and gave them their share. That's how the attempt to do Plunkitt ended, and that's how all such attempts end."

It is hardly necessary, in the light of this authentic statement of "honest graft," to working at all large upon extended opportunities that would come to the men of the Plunkitt stamp were the dream of municipal ownership to come true. Plunkitt says "most politicians who are accused of robbing the city got rich the same way" he did.

"They didn't steal a dollar from the city. They just seen their opportunities and took them."

While in the legislature Plunkitt introduced the bills that provided for the outlying parks of New York, the Harlem river speedway, the Washington bridge, the One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street viaduct, additions to the Museum of Natural History and many other important public improvements. He is now a millionaire. Under the proposed order of things, with city control of everything, he might become a billionaire.

Under municipal ownership of all public utilities in New York—and in most other cities in fact—politicians like Plunkitt, who at different times has been elected state senator, assemblyman, county supervisor and alderman by his fellow citizens, besides serving as police, magistrate for one term, and who boasts of his record in filling four public offices in one year and drawing salaries from three of them at the same time, would flourish like a whole grove of green bay trees.

Go Slow on City Ownership.

Until politics in America is purified far beyond its present condition any large experiment in government ownership may be called a "thief breeder" with much safety. The more authority there is vested in the hands of politicians (with all due deference to our national administration) the more corruption there will be. It is a short-sighted citizen who would take more business out of private hands and commit it to the tender mercies of the politicians.—Troy Press.

Another Plant Abandoned.
After many years' trial of its municipal electric lighting plant Alexandria, Va., has finally leased the works to a private corporation for a period of thirty years. The lessee paid $5,500 for the plant, which had cost the city $17,000.

THE KENTUCKIAN will send to the Jamestown Exposition the four most popular young women in Christian County. The Kentuckian will pay every cent of expense, including railroad fare, Pullman fare, meals on train; hotel bills, street car fare; admission to grounds and amusement concessions; side trips to points in the vicinity of the Exposition grounds.

The contest is open to any young lady making her home in Christian county. For each year's subscription to the Kentuckian at $2.00 the subscriber will be entitled to cast 40 votes.

Our contest begins Nov. 15th and will continue for 6 months; to May 15.

In order that all subscribers to the Kentuckian may have an interest in this contest, all subscribers on our books at the time of this announcement will be entitled to 20 votes each, which 20 votes may be placed to the credit of any one candidate—provided they are cast before January 1, 1907.

YOU choose the candidate—WE don't. The minute a vote is cast for a young woman she becomes a candidate and her name is placed upon the published list, together with the total vote cast for her up to the time the list is published.

When a subscription is received at this office the subscriber is first credited with the amount of his subscription and the number of votes his subscription represents is credited to the candidate named by him and entered in a special record book kept for the purpose. The vote will be COUNTED EVERY FRIDAY at noon and each candidate will be credited with her new vote and her total vote to date and the result will be published in the next issue of the Kentuckian.

Representative S. M. Russell, member of the lower house of the General assembly from Todd county, was seriously injured Wednesday in a runaway accident near Eliton, his head being cut in many places.

Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz, of San Francisco, who with his wife, has just returned from Europe, was arrested Thursday afternoon, charged with extortion as found by the grand jury indictment recently.

The football season closes with 11 killed and 100 seriously injured. Only one prize fighter has been killed in recent years. Football should be put in the same class with other brutal sports and stopped by law. In ten years it has cost the country the lives of more than 150 of its best young men.

If the Legislature is to be called together in special session, the question of repealing the new statute by which a poor man's taxes can be increased from $1.50 to $5.13 in 30 days and his bed sold to collect it, should come up for imperative action, if this State is to remain Democratic. It is of far more importance than further temperance legislation.

The Christmas McClure's contains some of the most varied, picturesque, and striking material which the magazine has ever gathered together in a single number. Perhaps the most interesting single feature is an editorial article in which a life of Mary Baker G. Eddy and a history of Christian Science are announced, to begin in January. Christian Science is a movement on which all eyes are turned to-day, and the announcement that a true history of this great romantic movement and its leader is forthcoming, marks an excellent stroke of magazine policy.

The pastors of the city churches were also guests and the gentlemen of the cloth had a most enjoyable time and voted Dr. Smith the prince of guests.

A BIG DAY IN PRISON.

Party of Fifteen From City Spend Thanksgiving at Eddyville.

OVER 30 CONVERSIONS.

A Day That Will Long Be Remembered By Those Present.

Thanksgiving Day in the Eddyville penitentiary was one of the grandest in the history of religious work there. A party of fifteen, representing almost every denomination in the city, went down and conducted a service which lasted fully two and a half hours.

The chapel was packed and a more orderly and patient lot of men never gathered in a place of worship.

The program was varied to suit the audience. A recitation and several solo songs took up part of the time before the sermon, by Dr. A. P. Lyon, pastor of the local Methodist church. Dr. Lyon made a most powerful appeal to the unfortunates to accept Christ, no matter what their term of confinement might be.

This was the second time Dr. Lyon had held up Christ to the men behind the bars. After his sermon a year ago there was a large number of conversions, but Thursday the preacher seemed to get closer to the hearts of his hearers. After the sermon he asked those who wanted to publicly profess Christ to go to the altar and give him their hand. Not less than 30 answered the call. After being dismissed by Rev. Woodson, the chaplain, about one-fourth of the congregation remained to talk with the visitors about their souls' salvation. A dozen or more united with the white endeavor society, besides there was a number of accessions to the colored society of the prison.

The visitors were most hospitably entertained by Warden Hagerman and his assistants. At 10 o'clock they were furnished a regular Thanksgiving dinner at the table of the warden at which Miss Robinson and Mrs. Kimble, as hostesses, in the absence of Mrs. Hagerman, vied with each other in making the feast a success socially and every other way.

The warden is always glad to have Christian workers among the men under his care and said that when the visitors thought best to come again to let him know how many would be in the party and he would cheerfully receive them and give them "the best in the house." Mr. Hagerman is a general favorite with those who go to the institute as visitors for work among the men and is generally popular.

The working party was made up of the following persons:

Dr. A. P. Lyon, Mrs. Dr. P. E. West, Miss Willie Harned, Mrs. J. M. Starling, Dr. Ketchum, Misses Carrie and Mary Johnson, Charlie Anderson, Miss Mamie Anderson, Miss Jennie Glass, Miss Elizabeth Jones and Lucy Starling, who is now superintendent of prison work in Kentucky and is doing a grand work.

KENTUCKY HORSES

Bring Good Prices at Sale in New York.

W. E. D. Stokes, who has a stock farm in Kentucky, Monday disposed of a collection of horses of his own breeding by his stallions, Patchen Wilkes and J. J. Audubon, to George Floyd Jones, a New York banker, for $30,000. The grand total of horses sold at the Old Glory sale was 107 for $23,775.

Dr. Williams, of Crofton, spent Thanksgiving Day in the city.

Suiting the Hard to Suit Men!

The harder a man is to please with clothes, the harder he is to fit, the more fastidious he is as regards style and detail in general, the more anxious we are to have him come here for his Fall and Winter Suit. We want the hard-to-suit man to come here with all his Notions and Ideas. We believe we have an agreeable surprise in store for him.

The price range on our Suits runs something like this:

$5.00 to $25.00!

You'll note that these prices are about half what the custom makers charge you, and he could not give you a "better" Suit if he tried, and tried, and tried.

HOG CHOLERA

The Problem of a Cure is Now Solved

The much dreaded disease, hog cholera, has lost its terror to those who are posted on modern methods of treating the disease. It is now a curable disease. Any practical farmer who will follow the instructions given by the manufacturers can stop the worst outbreak of disease that ever came and save almost every hog able to take the treatment and restore the herd to thrift in a few days time.

The Snoddy Remedy, manufactured by The Dr. J. H. Snoddy Remedy Co., of Alton, Ill., has been used in this country and has proven itself a positive cure for the much dreaded disease. It is now on sale in Hopkinsville, by the Planters Hardware Co., Inc., who will furnish any farmer or hog raiser one of Snoddy's books on hog cholera, free of charge, who will call at their store for it. Full directions for curing hog cholera is fully explained in this little booklet. Every farmer should have one. They are free, and it is hoped that the people will study up on this new method of treating the disease so they can feel safe from the disease when raising hogs and also so they will understand how to keep the cholera out of this country. The remedy is also on sale by E. E. Stegar & Dickson, down at Masonville, who will also furnish the farmer a copy of Snoddy's book on hog cholera, who will call there for it.

This remedy is the greatest worm remedy and thrift producer for hogs there is on the market. The extra gain they will make from its effect will return the farmer an average of $5 in this extra gain for every dollar's worth of the medicine he uses properly and right. Hence the remedy is not an expense to a farmer but one is a profitable investment, and one that pays a greater profit than anything else on the farm the same amount of money can be invested into.

The remedy is certain in its action when properly used. It is impossible for a cholera germ or worm of any kind to live in a hog while that hog is under the influence of this remedy. The remedy will destroy every worm or germ of this kind and the hog will get well in a short while and be as thrifty as he ever was. There are many imitations of this remedy being put on the market. Let everyone be careful that they do not buy an imitation of the goods. The public will know the genuine Snoddy Remedy by its having Dr. J. H. Snoddy's picture on every label. If a medicine for hog cholera is offered you that is claimed to be the Snoddy Remedy and does not have Dr. Snoddy's picture on the label, refuse it, because none are genuine without this picture. Dr. J. H. Snoddy is the original discoverer of the remedy and the Dr. J. H. Snoddy Remedy Co., uses his picture as a trademark. For further particulars call on the Planters Hardware Co., Incorporated, Hopkinsville, or E. W. Stegar & Dickson, at Masonville, Ky. The remedy is manufactured by Dr. J. H. Snoddy Remedy Co., Alton, Ill.

NERVY CONDUCTOR

Outwits and Captures a Daring Train Robber.

Kansas, City, Mo., Nov. 26.—One of the most unique and daring train robberies in the history of the Southwest was committed 100 miles East of Kansas City early to-day. Between Slater and Armstrong, Mo., a distance of twenty-one miles, a masked man, single-handed, robbed twenty passengers in three cars of the fast Eastbound combination of the Chicago and Alton-Chicago, Burlington and Quincy passenger train. After half an hour's work he secured approximately $2,000, besides several watches and other pieces of jewelry. The man finally was overpowered by E. B. Heywood, the train conductor, who knocked a raised revolver from the robber's hand and forced him to the car floor. The robber was bound, made to disgorge and four hours after the robbery was committed, was placed in jail.

The robber, who said his name was Truehart, and that he came from California, was recognized by the engineer as the same man who on November 9 last, in an exactly similar manner and at the same place on the road, went through the rear sleeper of an Eastbound Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific overland limited, which on this division runs over the Alton tracks. Truehart, who refused to give his full name, or tell what town he came from, said that it was his brother who held up the Rock Island train.

Sam Jones' Death.

The papers of the land, religious as well as secular, continue to repeat the erroneous statements first sent out concerning the circumstances connected with Rev. Sam P. Jones' death, says the Midland Methodist. His last sermon was not on "Sudden Death," but was from the text, "My grace is sufficient for thee." He was not found dead in a sleeper. The last service in Oklahoma City was rained out by torrents, water running through the tabernacle in streams. So Rev. Sam Jones, Rev. Walter Holcomb, Mrs. Jones, and two married daughters left for Cartersville, Ga., sooner than they had planned. That night the evangelist was in fine spirits and seemingly in excellent health. He heard that a consumptive and wife were in the day coach, going to their home in North Carolina. He paid for berths and had the Pullman porter go after the sick man and wife. Before retiring himself the evangelist went to the sick man's berth and said: "Well old fellow, I'm sorry you are sick. I hope you'll rest well to night. When we get to Memphis, I'll buy tickets through to your home." The wife was overjoyed at that was the cause of much worrying. Mr. Jones slept well and arose early as usual. While the porter was shining his shoes, the wife was teasing of course—wondering if the porter could make the shoes as black as the porter's face. In a few minutes the evangelist commenced to suffer, went to a berth and asked his daughter to get up and fix him a cup of hot water. Soon he became alarmingly ill. The daughter hastily called to Rev. Walter Holcomb, who slipped out of a berth into his trousers, and caught the dying evangelist in his arms. Mrs. Jones and her daughter were quickly summoned, but the stiffening lips of husband and father could speak no word. In ten minutes he was dead. From his pocket afterwards was taken money to redeem his promise to the consumptive man and wife. We get these details from Rev. Walter Holcomb, who is now in the Jones home, at Cartersville, helping Mrs. Jones prepare a book on the great evangelist's life.

AMUSEMENTS

The American Amusement company life moving pictures shows than all other firms combined. Why? Because they are the only ones on earth that have no flicker. Because you can see them talk, see the expression on every face. They are not rented or sold and can be seen only with their own attractions, and you will see next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights at Holland's Opera House the world famous Philomina and a host of vaudeville performers for 10, 20 and 30 cents, a two and one half hour show. Ladies free first night if accompanied by a paid ticket.

FARMERS' PROBLEMS

The total wheat crop, both winter and spring, for 1906, is estimated at 770 million bushels. Sixty-five per cent. of this crop is raised in 232 counties, and in these 232 counties the American Society of Equity campaign is to be carried on vigorously. You are invited to join this great strike for fair prices.

Wheat used to be worth a dollar a bushel. Since those days farm lands have advanced in price, labor has advanced, steel, iron, nails and wire fencing have advanced, all of them from 25 to 100 per cent. Everything has advanced except wheat. The dumpers are selling it today for about 75 cents a bushel—hard times prices.

We believe this society can bring a condition to force "Dollar Wheat" by February or before.

The farmer is practically the only producer who is not allowed to do his own thinking. He is expected to always ask at what price he may sell and also at what price he may buy. When at the request of his wife he stops in at the general store for a few yards of mulin he asks: "What do you want for it?" and pays the price, and when he arrives with a load of wheat or potatoes he asks: "What are you giving for it?"

The farmer, it seems, has come to be a perpetual question mark. The time has come, not for experimenting, but to complete the A. S. of E.

Six million farmers to get the same advice on any crop at the same time. Let your importance be felt.

If you don't take your own part who is going to take it for you? Now, Brother Farmer, if you want a meeting for the purpose of joining the A. S. of E. address F. B. McCown, Kirkmansville, Ky., or Hon. C. Hays Taylor, Owensboro, Ky. All over the country others are putting their shoulders to the wheel and we need your help. Show us that you appreciate what we are doing for you. Dues, fees and official paper weekly, one year, one dollar, up to January 1st; after that two dollars a year. A. S. of E.

Joseph Phillips, of Newton, Kansas, a Kentuckian, who left his home in 1864, returned Thursday a millionaire to his native heath to give thanks for the prosperity that he has enjoyed. He was accompanied by his wife. Mr. Phillips came incidentally to visit his brother, H. B. Phillips, of Owensboro.

HOW TO SHOW A PROFIT.

Tricky Bookkeeping Puts Losses on the Profit Side.

The printed report of a municipal electric light plant in Indiana has just been received. It shows a profit. There is no question about it. It shows a large profit. The figures are there in black and white, and they show a profit equivalent to 30 per cent of the gross income and 18 per cent on the capital invested. That is what we call a profitable business.

How was this plant able to make so good a showing? In a way so simple that any municipal plant could adopt it with success if its superintendent were good at figures. And the best of it is that it makes competition by private plants impossible because—well, stockholders are not inquisitive.

In the first place the fixed charges for interest on the capital invested and for depreciation were entirely ignored. Then no allowance was made for taxes lost by having municipal instead of private ownership. Next, while full charge was made against the water department and the city offices for lights and supplies, the superintendent conveniently forgot to charge the lighting plant with the water used in its boilers and condensers or with its share of the salaries in the city accounting department. Insurance was also overlooked. Finally, to make assurance of profit doubly sure, a number of items properly pertaining to maintenance were charged to "new construction." At the same time the charge for street and public building lights was quite as high as in surrounding cities served by private companies, which had somehow or other to provide for all these omitted items.

It is perhaps needless to add that except for the judicious way in which the superintendent prepared his report a considerable deficit would have appeared instead of the gratifying profits. Of course the taxpayers will have to provide the money to make good these paper profits, but they may not for some years see the connection between their profitable plant and the higher tax rate, and meanwhile are happy in the contemplation of its profits and will doubtless testify enthusiastically to the benefits of municipal ownership.

From the above we may deduce the following rule for showing a profit: First, omit all items of expense that can without too much danger of detection be saddled upon the general tax list or other departments; second, charge in various ways as possible to new construction as many items of maintenance as may be necessary to show a large profit. (N. B.—The profit must be large to provide for the contingency of some caring critic discovering one or more of the concealed items of expense and ruthlessly drawing them forth from their hiding places.)

If the above rule is scrupulously followed there seems to be no reason why every municipal plant should not show a profit.—"Concerning Municipal Ownership."

GONE OUT OF BUSINESS.

Millions Sunk In Unsuccessful Municipal Lighting Plants.

During the past few years at least sixty cities and towns in the United States have sold, leased or abandoned their light plants. In many instances they still retain their distributing system, buying the current from some company, but in most instances they have gone out of the business entirely. A number of other places have made unsuccessful efforts to dispose of their plants.

As with few exceptions municipal lighting plants have been in operation but a short time, this is a remarkable showing of failure and one, it need hardly be said, that is seriously avoided by those who for ends of their own are urging other cities to make similar experiments.

As it usually takes some years for a city to realize how great a burden it is carrying in its lighting plant, it is probable that the number of admitted failures will increase rapidly from now on, for, as an expert electric engineer recently said, "There are already indications that a considerable number of these municipalities which have engaged in improper undertakings are entering upon a period of financial difficulty."

Faults Enough as It Is.
The political machine that dominates New York city is strong because large powers are delegated to it, and the expenditure of $100,000,000 is given absolutely into its keeping. We have faults enough without municipal ownership in most of the cities of this country, and the ordinary business man fails to see the wisdom of making the situation more complex and dubious than it is by adding the problem of municipal ownership with all that it implies.—Binghamton Herald.

"It."
"Municipal ownership," remarks the Winnipeg Free Press, "should not be discredited because of its tendency to increase municipal debt, provided the new enterprises are made to be fully self-sustaining." Neither is dynamite dangerous if carefully handled. It is just about as safe to trust the management of a municipalized service to the average municipal council as it would be to engage a seven-year-old boy to handle dynamite.—Montreal Gazette.

Who Would Fine the City?
An exchange notes the fact that a city council recently fined a water company $1,000 for supplying impure and unwholesome water. That is right. But if the waterworks had been owned by the city—

A Contract in Wheat.

BY ARTHUR CHAMBERLAIN.

(Copyright, 1906, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"I can't see a chance, sir; sorry as I am to say so. We must deliver that wheat within 24 hours or forfeit our contract, and that smashes us. Marchmont has cornered the market, and won't sell at any price."

"Don't you be fooled, Cartwright. We're caught, I know; but Marchmont must sell to realize, and all his talk about not selling is bluff. What's his price? That's all we want to know."

Cartwright, confidential clerk to Aberley, shrugged his shoulders. "He won't sell, Mr. Aberley," he repeated, doggedly.

"Don't tell me that again, sir!" Aberley cried. "He will sell—he shall sell—!" He pulled short up, gasping; while Cartwright sprang towards him in sudden alarm. "I—I let my temper get the best of me—yes, yes; that's right: a man of my build can't afford to get excited. No brandy—a little water—well, Mr. Cartwright, if we fail, we fail. That's Shakespeare, isn't it? There's 24 hours, anyway, and we'll trust to the chapter of accidents; that's all there is left for us."

Aberley left the office shortly; the men and women whom he met he recognized merely as moving obstacles in his way. He felt, dully, that he wanted to get where it was quiet—where he could think. He was numb with the sense of failure; he could not make the phantom seem a reality. He—fail? He had ridden financial gales where hundreds had made shipwreck; he had exulted in his foresight, in his shrewdness, in his infallible prescience. He sank down wearily upon a bench in the first square that he came to, staring at the nursemaids and children with unseeing eyes.

He realized presently, in a vague fashion, that he was not the only occupant of the bench; a girl of about 13 years was seated at the farther end, and as Aberley looked more closely—for he had a curious fondness for children—he saw that her eyes were filled with tears which she tried to check while her little shoulders heaved with sobs. Aberley felt a slight relief from his despair as he leaned towards her. "Lost?" he inquired.

The little girl turned her pleading eyes to his. "No," she said, gravely. "I'm not lost; I'm trying to think. I came here to think; but I can't think it out all straight—not yet. Please don't be bothered; I'll go away."

"I wouldn't wonder," said Aberley, with a sense of being two men at once, "if it isn't about time for you to go home; and if you don't mind, I'll walk along with you. I've wanted to do some thinking myself."

The little girl looked up at him, tactfully consenting. "You're in business, I guess, like my papa," she said, tentatively.

"Yes," assented Aberley, briefly. "I am in business."

"Then—" the little girl hesitated, and Aberley smiled at her encouragingly. The phantom of failure had slipped temporarily into the background.

"Perhaps," she went on, "you can tell me something—is all the wheat cornered?"

Aberley drew a short, stabbing breath. "What d'ye mean?" he said, almost roughly.

The little girl stared at his sudden change of tone, but went on bravely. "Why, you see, I was hiding under the sofa in the library after luncheon, and I heard my papa tell a man he thought he'd cornered all the wheat, but there was a big lot that had slipped through his fingers—and if we can't get it at our figure," I heard papa say, "we're ruined; Aberley will snap it up and hammer us to pieces." Oh, don't you think papa can get that lot of wheat?"

Aberley was hurrying along at a pace that kept the little girl trotting at his side. If he could only reach a pay telephone before Cartwright left the office! Five minutes—one minute—would settle it; he could trust Cartwright to get track of the wheat—to buy it—he would win the deal yet! His credit was better than Marchmont's, he could pay practically any price for it. Aberley felt a sudden tug at his hand as the crowd surged at him; he glanced down in time to see the little girl stagger and fall. He bent over her half mechanically, and a little white face met his gaze; its trustful eyes looked into his.

"Good God!" he cried sharply, shivering as one who awakes from a nightmare. There was no irreverence in the speech. He caught the little girl to him.

"You'll take me home, won't you?" she said.

"I certainly will," replied Aberley. "I think not, sir!" A hand fell heavily on Aberley's shoulder, availing him half around. Marchmont snatched the little girl from him and stood glaring.

"Papa!" cried the little girl, excitedly.

Aberley pulled himself together. "Marchmont, we don't want to have a fight on the street. I've a business proposition to make; if I may come into your house, I'll make it there."

"Come," replied Marchmont, grimly.

Aberley followed Marchmont indoors; the nurse swooped down upon the little girl and bore her away. Once in the library, Aberley turned to Marchmont, speaking deliberately.

"What d'ye mean?" He said, Almost Roughly.

ly. "Marchmont," he said, "I am in a hole. It is a bad hole. I've a big contract to fill to-morrow, and I'm short on wheat. Cartwright says that you won't sell at any price. Is that so?"

"It is," replied Marchmont, briefly.

Aberley inclined his head. "Then—I fail. Unless—" he looked hard at Marchmont, and waited.

"Well?" queried Marchmont, with narrowing eyes.

"Unless I telephone my confidential clerk to buy that lot of wheat that has slipped through your fingers."

Marchmont started, recovering himself with an effort. "Well," he said, heavily, "why don't you telephone?"

"Because," returned Aberley, with great gentleness, "it was your little girl who—gave you away."

Marchmont sank down into a chair and stared up at him; Aberley went on:

"Marchmont, I take this is a drawn game. We had a stalemate, so to speak, and then your little girl upset the chessboard. There are some things that a man can't do—even on Wall street. I want a partner. I want you. Is it a go?"

Marchmont held out his hand. "It is a go," he said.

ANTS HARD TO KILL.

Ants are really very long lived, considering their minuteness. Janet, for ten years, and one of Sir John Lubbock's ant pets lived into her fiftieth year.

Ants are very tenacious of life after severe injury. Following loss of the entire abdomen they sometimes live two weeks, and in one case a headless ant, carefully decapitated by aseptic surgery, lived for 41 days. A carpenter ant after being submerged eight days in distilled water came to life upon being dried, so that they are practically proof against drowning.

They can live for long periods without food; in one case the fast lasted nearly nine months.

FREAK OF LIGHTNING.

"Jack's mother-in-law took refuge under a tree during a thunder-storm," food; in one case the fast lasted nearly nine months.

"And was struck by lightning?" "No; it didn't even hit the tree!"

THEIR ACQUAINTANCE.

"You evidently knew that lady." "Yes, I knew her."

"And you didn't speak." "No; mine is merely a glaring acquaintance."

Mr. E. L. Weathers has moved into the handsome cottage on Main street, which was recently built by Mr. S. M. Fraser.

The recent rains did considerable damage in this neighborhood. J. W. Allen, Will Joiner and others whose farms are on the creek, lost a good deal of corn and fencing, and in some places our public roads have been made almost impassable.

There is to be a supper at the Lafayette High School building next Thursday night for the benefit of the school library. Everybody invited.

And fortune is "agin" you,
Don't pine. Spruce up—show the world
You've got the timber in you.
